There's beauty all around our paths, if but our watchful eyes Can trace it midst familiar things and through their lowly guise.

KANE HIGH SCHOOL

KANE, PENNSYLVANIA

Foreword

THANKS to our pioneer forefathers, 1949 finds us in a quite different world from that of a century ago. However through the years we, like those forty-niners, have dug for the golden qualities and the nobler aspects of life. Through our work in the classroom, living together, and helping each other, we have been preparing to meet what lies ahead.

The staff has tried to present a record of all that went into the making of this school year. As the memory of the year grows dim, may this edition of the HURRI-KANE help recall those days spent in Kane High.

On the heights of the Alleghenies
Stands a high school fair,
There, among great trees abiding—
Pine scent in the air.
There, all nature in its glory,
In summer green, in winter hoary—
Tells the seasons' wondrous story;
Hail to old Kane High.

The Pioneers

Through the year

(1) Artists putting the finishing touches on "Tiny Tim." (2) A steady racket in typing room. (3) Bill and Gerald show their collection of homs. (4) and (5) Gloria and Evelyn display their hobbies (6) Library full-up. (7) Park between the flags. (8) Ray and Mr. Montgomery figure out a trig analysis. (9) LaRue's hobby is bees.

1949 was the year of discovenes for Kane Hi. Knowledge, the treasure for which the students were seeking, took much of their time. Some struck rich veins; some, fools' gold; a few were unsuccessful or dropped out.

One of the important discoveries was the students of Ludlow who made valuable contributions to all phases of school work.

After a trip to State College, the art class began work on a mural in the cafeteria. The bookkeeping class gained experience in the cafeteria. Some of their duties consisted of checking invoices, paying bills, preparing statements and various statistical data, keeping books, caring for stock and serving as cashiers.

We tried our best

Early in the spring the office practice group began getting on-the-job experience in business places up town.

The pursuit for knowledge brought an unusual situation during the fourth six-weeks period. The girls in home ec. decided to explore the mysteries of shop, and the boys tried to find their way through the maze of home economics. They all came through with flying colors plus now and then a smashed thumb or indigestion.

The social sciences prepared the way for good citizenship. Both the problems of democracy and civics classes took field trips to make their courses more practical. The seniors visited George Junior Republic, the County Court House, and the Warren State Hospital; the freshmen organized comittees to visit various parts of Kane's government.

(1)-(3) Boys in home ec mix it, fix it, and down it. (4) Freshman guls begin to make their own clothes.
(5) Darn it! The boys soon learned (6) Guls decided, "No more drips." (7) Mort explains the drawing.

(8) Some excellent wood work comes out of this seeming confusion.

To live and learn

(1) Physics students turn to the book for information on center of gravity. (2) Microprojection of the house fly in biology. (3) Chow line. (4) Freshmen marvel at the wonders of electricity (5) Van and Kinky wait for the fodine to crystallize.

Armed with paper and pencil, they carried on the search in science and math. Some went through the year leading the "Old Horse of Chemistry." One could hear them shout for joy when they found their unknowns Those who took the trail through algebra were often disappointed, the elusive "X" kept disappearing into the next problem

Although the school year has ended, the search will go on and on.

Board of Education

TO THE CLASS OF 1949.

We are privileged to have participated in your education. You deserve our congratulations upon the completion of your free public school education as concerved by our forefathers as one of the fundamental safeguards of our republic, a prerogative, as it were, of democracy.

You received some knowledge in many subjects and skills. Your education will continue in colleges, hospitals, offices, and industry. You can't stop, quit, give up. Life is too insistent, the pace too fast, the penalty too sure even to hesitate Teachers will be all around you, and in many things you must be self taught, but you must keep up.

We also hope to keep up by improving the facilities of the high school, by working with the administration, the teachers, the custodians, and the students that we can live and learn under the best possible conditions.

The evaluation and the consolidation this past year have brought us new friends. May we keep up as well with the changes necessary in the years ahead.

You FORTY-NINERS of today might feel that no such golden frontiers wait for you as awaited the Forty Niners one hundred years ago, but they do if you remember that the most priceless treasures are not material.

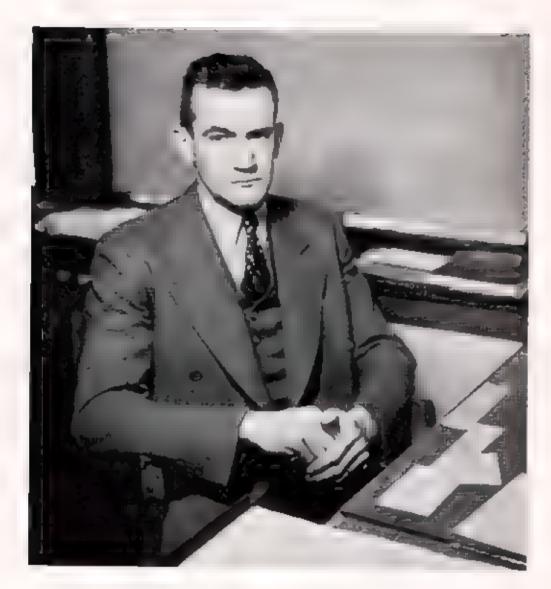

A little Irish lad met a leprechaun and asked him if he would show him his hidden pot of gold. The leprechaun agreed and they started through the woods.

The boy stopped to release a trapped hare, found and cleaned a pretty stone to take to his mother, hunted early spring flowers, stopped to listen to birds singing and watched the trout in the stream.

Before he realized it the sun was sinking. "I must be home before dark. Where's the pot of gold?" he asked.

"You need no pot of gold," said the leprechaun. "You have the satisfaction of a humane act done, a pretty stone for your mother, the first spring flower to smell, and the memory of the bird songs and the beauty of the things you have seen. They are your pot of gold, precious more by far, for they cannot be purchased, nor can they be taken away from you!"

GLENNIS H. RICKERT

PAUL R. MILLER Principal

A century ago men were attracted to untold hardships and the dangers of a toilsome journey through hostile country by dreams of gold. Many never reached their destination and few of those who did reach it profited. Opening the new country brought new problems to be solved, and on a materialistic and mechanistic basis our ancestors were successful.

Spiritually we have not progressed so far in the past hundred years. Men still sell their souls for much less than a fortune. Wars are waging in many spots and are imminent in others. Freedom has been sold, prostituted or tossed away by millions of this world's peoples

Gold is seldom worth the struggle for it On freedom there is no price too high. Governor Youngdahl of Minnesota has said, "If any nation loves anything more than freedom they will lose it, and if they love money and comfort more, they will lose that, too." In the spirit of free men and women, go forth. There are smoother and easier paths than the trail of freedom but truly freeborn men will never travel them willingly.

The 49ers

This was a big year for the forty-niners. There was never a dull moment from the time they entered in the fall until graduation in the spring. The fun began with a mock wedding, Eleanor and Kent made a handsome bride and groom. Remember how the home ec. room rocked with laughter as the gifts were opened? The rolling pin was so appropriate. Then they staged some hilarious assembly programs

The whole class started to work on the stage production, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." Along about the same time came the magazine drive. Blanchard was high salesman, but everyone worked hard to swell the exchequer by $810.06 profit

The grand old seniors let their hair down in December and held a Christmas party in the gym complete with a tree, decorations, Santa Claus, and presents.

A number of their classmates received special honors during the year. Kitty Zerbe won first prize in the county and second prize in the district essay contest on "Why Democracy Works." The senior girls and faculty chose Renie Carlson for the D.A.R. citizenship award. From thirty tenor soloists who tried out at the All State High School Chorus, Richard Johnson was chosen to sing the solo parts. Ray Cartwright qualified as a Distinguished Rifleman, which is the highest award N.R.A. gives to junior shooters. The two Jims, Doug and Bill were on the champion basketball team.

Remember when they staged a Courtesy Week just to show underclassmen how polite a senior could be? The idea behind it all was the determination of the seniors that they should be first out of assembly. They were!

Finally the big moment arrived. Late in April the class left for Washington. For weeks after they returned, they rambled on about the buildings, the little parties, the baseball game, the things they thought they got away with, and the fun on the trip.

The last month was all hustle and bustle. There seemed so little time left! Imagin wishing that school would last a little longer. Finally projects were completed, term papers finished, exams taken, and books turned in Vespers and commencement were over and the final assembly became a reality. But again the 49ers came through!

Juniors start off with play posters

History

At the beginning of September the class of '50 took their places as upperclassmen. All through the year they worked to better their class and the school.

The class did the usual things all juniors do. They contributed to the different drives, produced an original history assembly, and sponsored a dreamy prom. Probably their most noted accomplishment was the class play, "Miss Lulu Bett."

The class ranked very high in sports with three men on the champion basket-ball team and a number of lettermen on the football and track teams. All in all the junior year added an important chapter to their book of memories.

Mr. Montgomery presents cake after numbers dance

History

The class of '51 began planning from the first day of school to make this a big year at Kane High.

The group was well represented in the sports program with boys making the varsity basketball and lootball teams. The members entered enthusiastically into all of the other activities open to them

Everyone responded wholeheartedly in supporting the various drives conducted in the school.

The outstanding social event of the year was the St. Patrick's Day party with dancing, games, cakewalk, and refresh ments. The class picnic was a fitting climax for the year.

Freshmen

Although somewhat quiet and shy those first days in September, these freshmen soon became the opposite, much to the dismay of their teachers.

They joined the various clubs open to them and became very active participants in intramurals. Many of the boys were members of both the Jay Vee football and basketball teams. The musically inclined students became members of band, orchestra and chorus.

Early in January the class held a getbetter-acquainted party in the gym during the first two periods of the day. A big evening party brought the year to a successful close.

Eighth Grade

When school opened in September 155 members of the class of '53 poured into rooms 10-14 from Ludlow, Wetmore, Highland, Morrison, James City, and Kane. This was the first year that the eighth grade came from outside Kane.

The eighth graders made a good beginning by joining the clubs open to them. Margaret Newton had a part in the all school play, and Joyce Watts sang with the Folk Song Group.

They also went all out for sports. Five of their boys, Tilburg', Berlin, Rice, Mathys, and Holt were members of the Junior High basketball team.

The entire class attended the Christmas game party held in the gym during the first and second periods.

The shop and home economics switch with the boys cooking, washing dishes, and darning socks while the girls fixed faucets, window shades, electric cords, sharpened knives, painted, and puttied turned out to be most interesting. All were sorry when the period was over.

The climax of the year came with the spring evening party in the gym.

"The meeting will come to order." With these words the wheels of the school government started to race on for another year Because last year's Council started the year's work and carried on until the new Council was elected and organized, the year was off to a smooth start. First period every Wednesday they discussed projects and organized committees, all working to make the school one which every one could be proud to attend in October the president and three members went to the state conference at Altoona, and they came back eager to try out new ideas suggested by other schools.

The Council accepted the chance to welcome the parents at the "Open House" and took charge of the big talent assembly for them. They also scheduled the regular weekly assemblies and sponsored the five Four Fold programs. One of the biggest jobs of the year was the cafeteria. With Bill Gustafson as chairman of this committee, the students enjoyed a more efficient setting for that "pause that refreshes."

A rather enjoyable phase of Student Council work was the parties. Renie Carlson ably headed this committee. How'd you like the monthly Juke Box Dances and the annual Barn Dance? Or even better, the dreamy February Snow Ball, all dressed up in formal clothes and dancing to a snazzy band? During these dances did you notice the newly purchased card tables and ping pong tables?

The Council helped with out-of-school projects too. Each home room gave its share to the March of Dimes and Junior Red Cross. At Thanksgiving they collected money for "Care," at Christmas sent White Christmas gifts to the Salvation Army, and in the spring packed Red Cross gift boxes for over seas

The Council has made some progress on the journey through the year, the last committee reports are in, and "If there is no further business, the meeting is adjourned."

Hurri - Kane

IRENE CARLSON - Editor
CONNIE COLELLA - Advertising Manager

MISS FLORENCE ALLIO - Adviser

All through the school year the staff has had but one objective, a successful year-book, something the students would wish to take with them. The 1949 Hurri-Kane is not only a historical record but also a memory book filled with pictures of friendly faces and familiar scenes

The staff has tried to make this a book which in years to come will help recall what you have enjoyed, the spirit and ideals of Kane High

The advertising and business departments sold advertising space, handled contracts, paid the bills, and took care of all office work.

The literary staff carried out the theme in the opening and division pages with pen sketches, pictures, and copy. They also planned the pictorial layout and wrote the copy for the book. They found it necessary during the year to make many changes in the original plans.

Working on the staff afforded practical experience in arranging and taking pictures, writing, meeting the townspeople, meeting deadlines, and getting along with one another in the small office space. This all developed responsibility, cooperation and efficiency

It was only after hours of conscientious work on the part of the staff and the cooperation of both students and faculty that this book was made possible.

Hi-Life, the voice of Kane High School's student body, spoke twice a week during the year. It kept the whole student body posted on what was going on around the school. The reporters dug up every bit of news, gossip, and sports events to make a very fine paper.

Just off the press

On the staff this year there were over forty hard working students and a helpful adviser making sure every thing was all right. Early in the year each reporter was given a special assignment of activities to cover.

Hi-Life tried to help its members by improving composition style, giving valuable work experience, developing personality and individual abilities. Every period of the day found staff members in the Hi Life office writing, typing, or doing one of the numer ous jobs connected with the production of the paper.

Hi-Life, rated All-American for the past two years, conducted two surveys during the school year. One was on health habits and the other one on favorite meals served in the cafeteria. Hi-Life increased the exchange list and is now sending the paper to over seventy different schools and alumni. Except for the war years this is their largest mailing list.

Radio Club

"This is station W.R.W., Kane High School" informed the students that the newly organized radio club was on the air.

During the year the group under the direction of Miss Ann Crill produced a number of plays to get funds to carry on the work. The best of these was "The State vs. Joe Miller." The club wrote and produced a mystery program and presented several of Edgar Allan Poe's short stones.

In the spring the club visited Station W.N.A.E. at Warren where they watched a program being presented and then were taken on a tour of the radio station.

This first year's work of Wolves Radio Workshop has broadened the students interests and knowledge in the various fields of radio, and some hope to continue with further study.

Rod and Gun Club

As Kane is in the heart of the Allegheny National Forest where hunting and fishing are popular sports, it was only natural that the boys insisted on again having a Hunting and Fishing Club. The Club consisted of thirty-five members from all classes in the school and was under the direction of Curtis Ickes.

The Club endeavored to teach the fundamentals of safety in the woods and to clarify any questions about hunting laws or game animal problems that might arise. The boys also discussed ways of conserving forests and wild life and ways to promote better sportsmanship.

The group sponsored a fish contest and have made plans for continuing their work during the summer.

Plastics Club

The whirring of motors, schreeching of drills, and the pungent odors of plastics meant that the Plastics Club was at work

Those interested students under direction of D. G. Van Ormer learned a new craft which might easily be turned into a profit able hobby or become a forerunner for those interested in plastics as a profession. The members have made many beautiful pieces of plastic art, such as chess boards, trays, miniatures, pen holders, salt and pepper shakers, earring stands, as well as other decorative objects.

The club made field trips to the Daystrom Furniture Company in Olean, St. Bonaventure College, and the Manenville Glass Plant.

Hall Patrol

As the three minute bell rang, the twentynine Hall Patrol members hurned to their assigned posts. Under the leadership of D. G. Van Ormer, these boys directed traffic between classes and helped to promote good citizenship. With the arrival of new students in the fall, this group had the added responsibility of directing them to the different rooms.

Early in the year, Jim Bovard was elected captain, Howie Sanford and Bob Cadden, co-captains. Under their leadership, this body controlled all the strategic points in the halls and kept lines operating smoothly during the lunch hour rushes. The bright red and blue arm bands, purchased by Student Council, stood as symbols of their authority.

Junior Dramatics

The secrets and mysteries of what took place behind the curtains were gradually unfolded to a group of potential actors under the direction of Miss Phyllis Magargee. Junior Dramatics was divided into two groups meeting on alternate Wednesdays. During the joint meetings held once a month, special programs were given. One of these events was the Christmas program consisting of a play, musical numbers, and refreshments.

These interested players settled down to work to put their new found knowledge into a spring assembly program. The success of this program climaxed the year as the curtain closed on "It Always Works."

Stage Crew

Before every stage production, study halls and classes alike worked with the sounds of hammering and sawing and the smell of paint coming from the auditorium.

Gust Mortenson's boys put into practice the training they had received in shop.

Thespian Club

First call for Thespians brought forth a large and enthusiastic group of students interested in some form of dramatic art. Under the direction of Miss Petrina Mitchell every member of the group had an opportunity to develop his own particular interest or talent.

Through participation in the club meetings, the students learned poise, self-confidence, and ease in appearing before an audience. Some meetings were devoted to a discussion of the technical work dealing with properties, stage-settings, applying makeup, various lighting effects, and costuming.

During the second semester with Mrs. Catherine Galbo in charge, the club entertained the students with their own play which was a take-off of people around the school.

Our Hearts Were Young and Gay

Amid fog horns and French bands Connie Erickson and Renie Carlson loved, cried, and scratched their way out of more tight places than Houdini himself. These girls supported by a well trained cast of fifteen classmates under the direction of Robert Smith and senior director, Mary Gardner, made the class play of the 49ers a huge success

The property committee searched through attics and store rooms to find costumes and properties dating back to 1923. There were times when the clothes, high laced shoes, frilly nightgowns, and shapeless dresses brought more laughs from the audience than the dialogue.

The stage hands did a bang up job of blowing fog homs and boat whistles and in getting the right light effects

The Stage Crew under the direction of Gust Mortenson worked out a unique idea for two complete sets, a ship's cabin and a hotel room in Paris. The art class supplied the Eiffel Tower to put the finishing touches on the Parisian scene.

The play was one fast moving event after another. The safety pockets started it all, then it went on from a stowaway to measles to bedbugs. Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough themselves could not have had more thrilling experiences than the seniors in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

Miss Lulu Bett

At last "Miss Lulu Bett" came to town. After approximately seven weeks of rehearsals to get everything completed, the all school play under the direction of Robert Smith and Frances Thoms, junior assistant, was staged. The basketball fever forced a change of date for the showing of the play, but who would buck the tide of the State Champs?

Rehearsals on the whole went rather smoothly though at times the going got difficult. Sometimes at practice the players became so exhausted that near the end of rehearsals everyone laughed hilamously over small bits of humor.

Finally, the night of dress rehearsal came. Everything went off quite well. Then the big night was here. Make up was applied; properties were checked for the last time; everyone was on the stage for final instructions; the play was on.

The story centered around Miss Lulu, the old maid sister of Mrs. Deacon, who finally captured a husband. The transformation from the sweet obliging spinster to a wife with her own ideas was remarkable. Monona, the youngest Deacon, was always getting in everybody's hair, especially her sister's when she wanted to have a date Her tantrums at meals and at bedtime set everybody wondering how spoiled a child could become.

Mortenson's stage crew set up a clever sitting-dining room complete with French doors and a window seat. The backdrop, depicting a colorful country garden, was painted by Miss Donovan's art class. The intricate lighting effects to represent different times of day made the stage appear quite authentic, especially the moonlight.

When the curtain closed on the last scene, all felt that their efforts had been worth while.

Kane's Music Makers

Music

Music occupied one of the top places among the students at Kane High. Four organized groups under the direction of Charles Stewart received experience and training as well as understanding and appreciation of fine music.

When the call for Orchestra was sounded it seemed as though it might be difficult to have a good Orchestra, but hard work did wonders. By the time the second six weeks' period of school had passed, there was no longer any question about this group. There were no outstanding sections, but under able leadership the final musical effect was pleasant. Eight members of this group went to District Orchestra and Helen Popowski went to State Orchestra.

Band was the old faithful among our musical organizations at Kane High since it contributed greatly to maintaining morale and enthusiasm among the student body. It served whenever it was called upon: assemblies, public affairs, junior and senior plays. Several members of the group were selected to go to District Band where Paul Larson was assigned to first clarinet chair. Paul also was selected for the first clarinet section at State Band. To get good results there must be practice, and all members met regularly on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays to catch Mr. Stewart's "downbeat."

The Mixed Chorus of thirty nine members brought a great deal of musical pleasure to those who took part and to those who heard them. During lunch hour strains of "Sylvia" or "The Lost Chord" could be heard floating from the auditorium. The Chorus participated in two concerts, one with the Orchestra and one with the Band. Hard work interspersed with fun held in check by Mr. Stewart brought satisfactory results.

The Folk Song Group, formerly the Madrigal Singers, consisted of seven seniors and one eighth grader. A splendid blending of voices combined with enthusiasm made this group one that was much in demand both in and out of school. Their repertoire, consisting of old time as well as modern numbers, was carefully selected and skillfully given. Four members of this group represented Kane High at District Chorus. Dick Johnson sang the tenor solo in "Russian Picnic" at State Chorus in Pottsville.

Beginners' Camera

The Beginners' Camera Club under the direction of Robert Carson spent a helpful as well as an interesting year finding out about what lay behind the "look at the birdie" and the click of the camera

Blanchard Brock and Richard Johnson aided in helping these novices to understand types of filters, shadows, light meters, lenses, color photography and all those difficult things which went into the making of a picture.

This group studied Mr. Carson's personal collection of photographs, many of which were taken in the Pacific Islands

Two programs of special interest consisted of A. R. Hazard's exhibition of color slides and Paul Watts' illustrated talk on his recent European tour.

Advanced Camera

Moving into its second year of existence, the Advanced Camera Club, consisting of seven enthusiastic members advised by Robert Carson, plunged into the task of further advancing their knowledge of the science of photography.

The Advanced Camera Club brought in a number of interested camera fans to talk to both camera groups. Most of these lectures dealt with color photography. A. R. Hazard, the first guest, accompanied his lecture with a large collection of color slides. He pointed out that most of his pictures were taken in Kane and that one doesn't have to go far to take interesting color shots. Leo Fahey discussed color photography from the professional point of view, and Paul Watts showed his collection of color slides.

National Honor

Dim lights, flaming torches, a hushed stillness—nine juniors and sixteen seniors were inducted into the National Honor Society. These young people in the impressive ceremony promised to uphold the cardinal principles upon which they were elected to membership in the society: scholarship, leadership, character, and service.

During the first semester the five members and their adviser, Miss Barbara Turner, held evening meetings at the homes. At Christmas they brought the holiday spirit into the cafeteria and the halls.

Shortly after the induction the Society held a tea for the members, their parents, and the faculty. This was followed by their traditional initiation dinner after which the entire group settled down to carry out their work for the year

Future Teachers

The newest club in Kane High School, Future Teachers of America, was open to those juniors and seniors interested in the held of teaching.

Under the direction of Paul R. Miller this group studied and discussed what really makes a good teacher and the things that make students like a teacher

The seniors spent time in classrooms, both in the grades and in high school, to see what it was all about from the teacher's viewpoint. At times when substitutes could not be secured, F.T.A. members were put into classrooms where they did magnificent work.

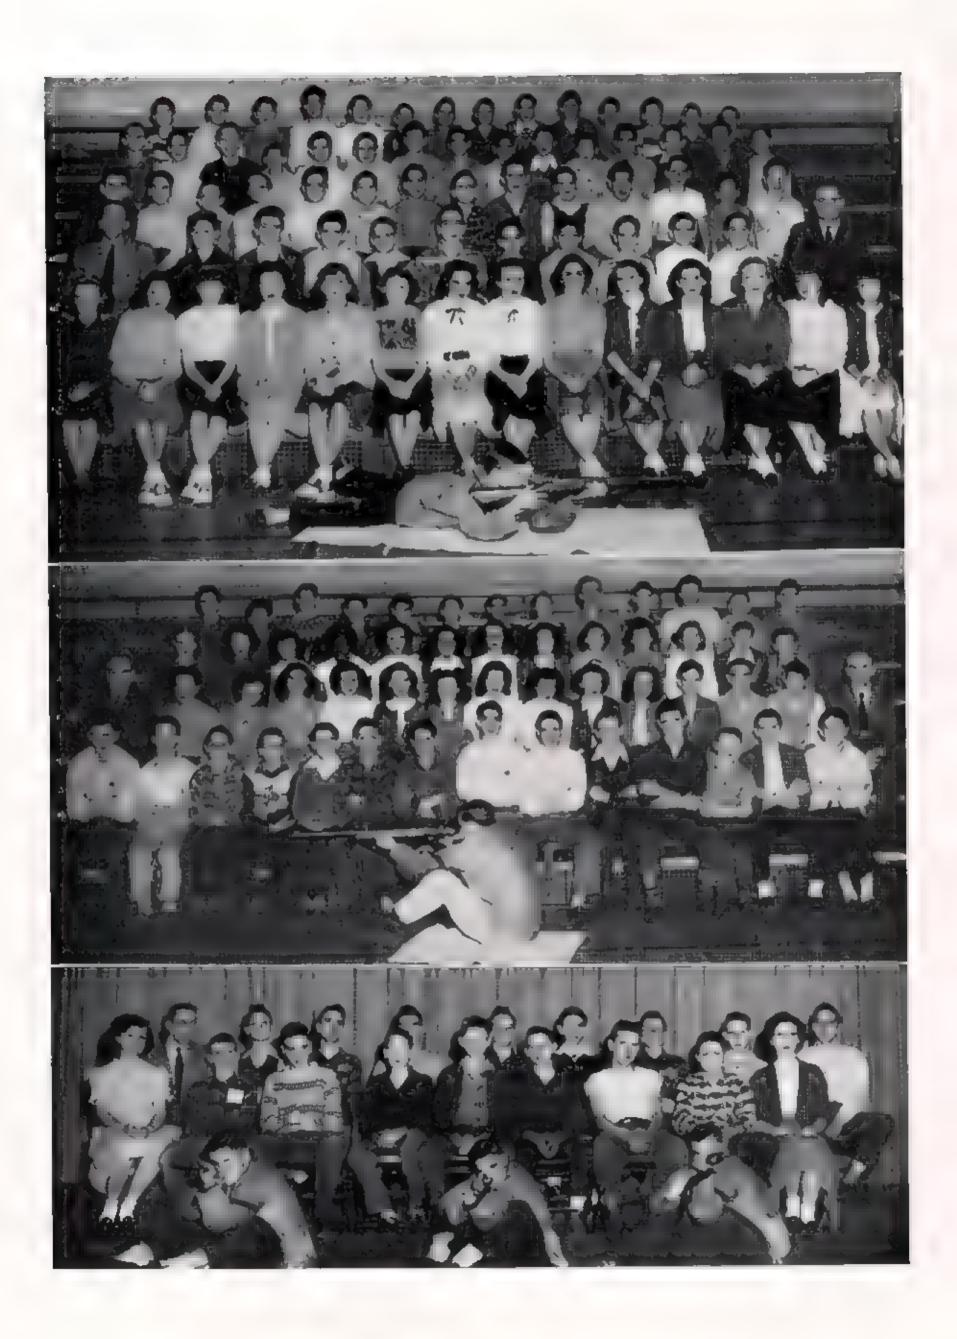

Early in March, the Future Teachers of America attended the Bradford Vocational Clinic where they heard Dr. James H. Morgan of Mansfield State Teachers College.

Small Arms School

"Take your time!" "Get a good finger squeeze!" were only a few of the last minute directions given by the advisers before a trembling Small Arms School member took his first shot at the target.

Small Arms School was divided into two groups. The eighth grade members met every Monday during the first period under the direction of William Miller and Gregg Turner. The ninth to twelfth grade group met every Wednesday with Mr. Miller and Curtis Ickes. Both groups worked in the gym until they mastered sighting and aiming and learned proper usage of the sling.

The eighth grade group started with eighty-one members; seventy completed the training and fifty-eight fired on the range. The second group started with seventy-three members; sixty completed, and forty-seven fired on the range. Decrease in membership was due to the fact that some students did not pay their dues.

The purpose of this school was two-fold: to teach safety measures with firearms and to teach the individual to fire for hunting and pleasure.

A range is now in the process of construction under the gym to accommodate more persons to fire at one time.

Rifle Club

Monday evenings and Friday mornings found the Rifle Club members firing away in the rifle range. Under the direction of Gregg Turner, these folks learned safety in the use of firearms, self-control as well as muscular control; and at the same time they were working on an interesting hobby.

Members of the club participated in various matches during the year. Among these were four monthly N.R.A. Postal Matches for a girls' team, for a team of persons under lifteen years of age, and for a team of all members. There were also PIAA District Matches and N.R.A. Shoulder to Shoulder National Matches.

Ray Cartwright and Ronald Peterson qualified for the Expert Rifleman Award and then for the Distinguished Rifleman, the highest award given by N.R.A. Ashbaugh, Baumann, Alexander, Bush, MacEwen, Kepler, McLaughlin, and Meckley qualified for Sharpshooter's Award with a varying number of bars for additional firing.

Peterson, Cartwright, Dahl, Pearson, and Hanna made up a team that fired in the National Rifle Association Shoulder to Shoulder Matches held in Wellsville, New York on March 19th.

The fellows also continued work on the new range

Athletic Council

Although Athletic Council was one of the busiest organizations about the school, it was without a doubt the least publicized. In addition to their regular work with scheduling football, basketball, and track, they sponsored the Junior High basketball team and the Jay Vee football squad.

This was a big year for purchasing equipment. They bought the flashy warm-up suits for varsity basketball, game jerseys and protective equipment for football, and warm-up suits and track and field equipment for track.

Cheerleaders

The Cheerleaders, working under the leadership of Mrs. Alice Turner, represented and guided the student body in controlled enthusiasm at all athletic events.

By selling football balloons and basketball schedule pencils, they purchased bright red sweaters and white emblems to complete their snappy uniforms.

To get the cheering section behind them, these six active girls worked hard putting zip and punch into their cheers. Their "Yeal Team! Fight!" led the school through an exciting year of sports.

Employing both the T formation and the single wing, Kane High's small eleven was capable of scoring from anywhere on the field. Coached by Paul Montgomery and Robert Cloos, the Wolves drove to two wins and one tie in their ten game schedule. Although boasting an adequate scoring punch, the Red and Blue lacked the size necessary for a winning team.

Kane's 1948 football season marked the end of Paul Montgomery's five year tenure as coach. Despite the fact that his teams never had a successful record on the field, Coach Montgomery was respected and admired by all who played under him

Prospects for the 1949 season are very bright, indeed. The new coach will be greeted by fifteen returning lettermen plus several promising members of Vic Gentilman's Jay Vee squad. These plucky Jay Vees, although outweighed and out scored, were far from being out fought.

Coach Vic Gentilman and his hard-working track squad climaxed their 1948 season by winning the District IX Class B championship. The Wolves combined for 69 points easily to establish Kane's superiority over six other Class B schools. In the State meet Bud Daly added to the hilltop prestige by capturing second place in the mile

This year Coaches Gentilman and Cloos were greeted by ten lettermen: Daly, Scordo, Bovard, Cartwright, Mague, McCauley, Cadden, Swanson, Goodwin, and Kerchner.

The season started on a dismal note as the Wolves, competing without twelve seniors, fell before Bradford and Johnsonburg Although winning six first places, the Wolves dropped a fourteen point decision to a veteran Warren squad. Kane winners were Daly, Scordo, Cartwright, Thompson, Cadden, and the mile relay team consisting of Daly, Bovard, Swanson, and Cadden.

Thus with a watchful eye towards the meet at DuBois, the Wolves are showing a strong evidence that they will have to be considered in the race for the District Crown.

Basketball

Coach Stuart Edwards and his hard-working Wolves culminated a highly successful season by capturing the coveted prize of all basketball fives, the State Class B Championship of Pennsylvania. This year's squad, acclaimed by many as the finest ever to represent Kane High, drove to twenty-two wins in twenty-five starts for the best modern day record of the school. On their journey to the state crown, Kane's fighting five annexed their fifth consecutive Mountain League banner and their second straight District Class B title

Three holdover lettermen, Jim Thompson, Jim Bovard, and Bud Daly, greeted Coach Edwards at the initial call for practice. To these veterans Coach Edwards added Doug Erickson and Bill Forsythe, two transfer students, former Jay Vee stars, Rod Kerchner and Fred Pearson; and three promising sophomores, Don Frase, Pat Scordo, and Ken Carlson, to form his winning combination.

The Forty-Niners started the season on an auspicious note by downing Mt. Jewett However, an erratic Warren five spoiled Kane's trip to Dragon-land with a two point victory. After trimming Mt. Jewett, Punxsutawney, and Brookville by satisfactory scores, the Edwardsmen again lost the game to Warren.

Coach Hap Wolfe and his highly touted St. Marys club played the part of perfect host to Kane in the league lid-lifter as the Wolves won from the Dutchmen, the team that was destined for second place in the Mountain circuit. Kane's Red and Blue completed the first half of the league schedule without a loss, but the bad Bradford Owls interrupted Kane's victory string with a thrilling overtime conquest.

Taking the loss in typical Edwards fashion, Kane clearly established their supremacy over the other teams in the league. As a result of successive victories over St. Marys, Wilcox, Sheffield, Ridgway, Johnsonburg, and Emporium, the 48-49 Kane Wolves became the only undefeated club in the history of the Mountain League.

In the final scheduled game of the sea son, the pride of the hilltop avenged a previous defeat with a decisive win over Harold Brace's Bradford quintet.

Junior Varsity

The Jay Vees enjoyed one of their most successful seasons this year winning thirteen out of their seventeen games. The losses were against Warren and Bradford, both strong Class A contenders. Brookville, another Class A team, fell to the junior boys.

Cronin was high scorer with 142 points. Magnuson took second place with 114 points, and Kulka, a Ludlow lad, was third with 101 points. Anderson and Johnson scored 92 and 74 respectively. Gustafson accounted for 46 points and Rudler, a freshman, scored 30. The Jay Vees scored 699 points while their opponents scored 466.

State Champs

Tom Zook, Doug Erickson, Fred Pearson, Don Frase.

Coach Edwards' proteges started their quest for the state title by smashing a valiant Otto Township five at Bradford. Although starting fast, the Northern Tier champs were no match for Kane Sandy Township, Southern District champs, next succumbed to the fierce on-slaught of the Wolves on the narrow Brook-ville court. The triumph enabled Kane to capture its second successive District IX Class B Toga.

Fighting with every bit of energy they could command, the Red and Blue nipped strong Rocky Grove, District X titlists, in a fast game at Bradford. Big Doug Erickson hit for twenty-six vital points as the Wolves gained the right to compete in the Western finals.

Setshot artist Jim Thompson played his top game of the season to lead the Hilltop pers to the Western championship and eliminate Everett from further consideration. Jim paced the Wolves in their successful endeavor to overcome the perils of a peculiar Altoona floor and the dribbling fanatics from Everett.

At last the goal was in sight. Determined to bring back the crown at any cost, the Wolves drew as their opponents the Ashley Rockets. Coach Sy Jablonski's huge quintet, averaging six feet-two in height, had gone through twenty-eight games without defeat and were heavily favored to cop the decision. Yet, the Edwardsmen played the Easterners on even terms throughout and finally took the contest with Don Frase's field goal in the last second of play. Thus, the 48-49 edition of the Wolves became the first McKean county team ever to capture a state crown

Kane High is one of the few schools in Pennsylvania which has an extensive intramural program in which every boy who desires inter-class competition in touch football, foul shooting, basketball, volleyball, wrestling, cross country, and five track events, may participate.

Competition was keen this year because of the new method of organizing more equal teams in each league. Basketball attracted the greatest number of boys with a total of 111 participating in 52 scheduled games during the season. Volleyball ranked second in popularity with 110 boys playing in 43 games. Wrestling again proved the most popular of the individual-competitive sports with 53 boys wrestling in eight weight classes.

Under the individual point system introduced last year, the fifteen boys who earned the most points received I.M. K's. Intramurals were conducted by Vic Gentulman, director; Robert Lowry, fall assistant, Robert Cloos, winter and spring assistant. Frank Schreiber, Stu Crill, and Jim Wenslow were the student managers.

Girls' Intramurals

(1) The Junior Champs. (2) A last game of soccer—Watch those ankles! (3) Girls fire the ball in a rugged game of basketball. (4) Senior Basketball Champs. (5) Bettie helps to arrange a pyramid.

Girls' Intramurals once again hit an all time high with more than one hundred seventy-five girls participating. Basketball led the top of the list with soccer, volley ball, mushball, and field hockey close runners-up. Individual activities, badminton, ping pong, and archery, also proved popular.

The intramural program aimed to promote as many activities for as many girls as possible using both indoor and outdoor facilities.

The girls met regularly on Mondays and Thursdays under the supervision of Mrs. Alice Turner and the intramural manager, Bettle Bauer. Anita Johnston, Sue Sandburg, Alice Anderson, Mona Cory, Peggy Thompson, Marilyn Olson, and Mary McDade assisted by officiating as referees, score-keepers, timers, and umpires.

All participants were divided into two leagues, the Junior League consisting of grades eight, nine, and ten and the Senior League made up of junior and senior girls.

The Ludlow girls played as an individual group in the activities. These girls were A. Johnson, B. Begeny, M. Lindquist, M. Swanson, S. Swanson, M. Servidio, and M. Schuster.

This year ten senior girls were chosen to take part in a district Play Day in Bradford, Saturday, May 7. The day's sports consisted of basketball, net games, relays, and other indoor and outdoor activities

Kane High School's Intramural program which was started lifteen years ago is one of the best in this section.
